Over 90% of the programs in my catalog range from good to excellent in sound quality. Because of the ambiguity of sound ratings in this hobby (everyone's ear judgement is different), I use them only occasionally. A large portion of the recordings are either first generation copies from the transcription discs, or prime 2nd, 3rd, or 4th generation reel copies, and it is not uncommon to receive a superb reel from me with no indication of that fact. However, please keep in mind that radio's golden years were before the advent of high fidelity and modern recording and preservation techniques. Most fortunately today's professional equipment can restore, improve, and preserve to an extent the original available sound quality through a number of successive recording generations. I use professional equipment and have traded my personal collection almost exclusively with the inner circle of radio hobbyists who use nothing but the finest equipment and care, and have the original or near original, or best recording available of any particular show. This means over 90% of the recordings you receive from me will be, or will sound the equal to, the best available copies elsewhere. YES, I IMPROVE MY PROGRAMS WITH AUDIO EQUALIZERS, AND I USE ONLY FACTORY FRESH POLYESTER (MYLAR) LUBRICATED TAPE THAT IS CAPABLE OF CAPTURING THE FULL AVAILABLE FIDELITY OF A RADIO PROGRAM. I will not give you bad tape as I do not want to ruin my own recording heads. My Emerald is a particularly good buy as living only a few miles from the warehouse I have my pick of superior quality. ALL PROGRAMS IN MY CATALOG ARE FOR PRIVATE USE ONLY AND ARE NOT CLEARED FOR BROADCAST...I TRADE FOR NEW MATERIAL...WANTED, USED SONY TC-280 AND TC-377 TAPE DECKS.

'Old Time Radio Shows'

The following 9 reels represent the largest and best quality collection of VIC & SADE in the country! They came directly from the members of a unique organization called THE VIC & SADE CLUB. Yes, such a fan club does exist, attesting to the popularity of the show which was one of the most highly regarded radio comedies. In its day it was hardly the most popular in terms of ratings. The reason for this is VIC & SADE'S subtle humor. Many did not realize the humor was there at all. But it is there and we think it is radio's best! VIC & SADE could be found among the soap operas in the daytime, and the setting was somewhat similar. But the small talk was at times, priceless! The occupants of "the small house halfway up in the next block" were Victor Gook, Sade Gook, Rush, and Russell. Although he wasn't in every show, probably the favorite character was uncle Fletcher. Uncle Fletcher, to put it mildly, lived in his own world. He lived in a ramshackle hotel by the railroad station, where the beds walked across the room whenever a train stormed through the town. VIC & SADE usually ended at the seemingly climactic point of interest, making it clear that it was not any particular plot that was the focal point, rather it was the collection of situations, and the connection of events and circumstances of the past that gave the series its value. VIC & SADE was written by Paul Rhymer, and a collection of scripts have been published by his widow. Also, a large collection of scripts are now held at the historical library on the university of Wisconsin, Madison. (See reels 454, 619, 620, 668, and 669. The program titles here are the official club titles.)

The next 4 reels are all THE MEL BLANC SHOW which came to CBS in 1946 after Mel Blanc, that zany crazy guy, was already a well-known name. With his "57 varieties" of dialect, voice characterization, and vocal sound effects, Blanc was one of the busiest men in hollywood. Of course you all know him best as the voice of Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig, Daffy Duck, Tweety Pie, Pedro the Mexican handyman on The Judy Canova Show, Floyd the barber on The Great Gildersleeve, and a variety of parts on The Jack Benny Show including the famous "Anahaim, Azusa and cuc-among!". On his own show he plays dual roles (2 voices) of two characters that operate a fix-it shop, of all things! Dig those show titles!
